LOCAL PLANT TO FURNISH CURRENT

TRANSMISSION LINE PLANNED

Frank Brady, Owner of Crothersville System, Given Permit to Erect Poles Along Road.

The why and the wherefore of the new transmission line which is being erected by the Interstate public service company between this city and Columbus was solved today when Frank Brady, owner of the electric light plant at Crothersville, was given permission by the county commissioners to erect a transmission line between Seymour and Crothersville. The new transmission line to the south will be built for the purpose of furnishing electric current for light and heat for Crothersville. The current, it is understood, is to be furnished through the local plant by means of the transmission line from Columbus.

It is understood that the Brady transmission line will extend through Dudleytown and that the farmers along the route will be permitted to have the advantages of electricity in their homes. Similar lines have been built between Seymour and Brownstown and Medora. Another is to be built to Tampico from Brownstown, it is understood. Brownstown and the towns west of here get their electric current from Seymour. It was largely due to the over load on the local plant for these towns that the plant recently gave down so completely. Brady, who was given permission to build the transmission line, has owned and operated the Crothersville electric plant for several years. However, only night service has been given. It is said that the demands upon his plant which is of limited capacity have been so great that he can not give service to all the residences and business houses in the town that desire to connect with his plant. The transmission line will improve the Crothersville service and will provide twenty-four hour service the same as is given here and in Brownstown.

The poles for the transmission line between Columbus and Seymour have been set in this city and the big transformer which will be used in connection with the system was unloaded from the car today.

NEW ESTIMATES ON HIGHWAYS URGED

Commissioners Hear Arguments Relative to Meaning of Indiana's New Road Laws.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE DESIRED

Number of Jackson Township Residents Urge That No Time be Lost in Paving The Highways.

The matter of improving the four roads in Jackson township for which the contracts were awarded in 1916, was the principal subject before the commissioners in regular session at the court house today. The Boone Construction Company to which three of the contracts were awarded and its bondsmen had been notified to appear before the commissioners at this term and show cause why the roads should not be improved immediately.

E. P. Elsner, a member of the last senate, told the commissioners that there were apparently some conflicts in the new road laws, but suggested that the engineer be instructed to make a new estimate of the cost of construction to report at the next meeting. By that time, he explained, the laws would be interpreted and the commissioners would then be in a position to get prompt action. He thought that if the contracts were reawarded the bondsmen for the Boone construction company would be held liable for any difference in the cost.

The contractors' relief law passed by the last legislature was understood to relieve contractors from any liability on roads for which the contracts were awarded prior to June 1917. It appears that some sections of this law are still in doubt and the commissioners are waiting for further information as to the meaning of these sections.

N. Kaufman, who was among the local men who attended the meeting, stated that it was his opinion that the contract ought not be awarded until it was seen whether the roads included in the contracts were to be made a part of the state highway system. In that case, he pointed out the improvement cost would not fall upon the county and the township would be saved from $40,000 to $60,000. Others said they thought that the improvements ought not be ordered until the state highway commission had made its program clear.

The commissioners will likely order the engineer to make a new estimate of the cost of the proposed improvements. The contractors and bondsmen did not file petitions to be relieved of their obligations and no action was taken as to them.

PIONEER OF CITY PASSED TO REWARD

Edwin W. Blish, Aged Eighty-Nine Years, Dies Sunday Morning at The Masonic Home.

CIVIL ENGINEER MANY YEARS

First Work in Indiana Was on The Cambridge City Branch of The Old J. M. & I. Railroad.

Edwin W. Blish, aged eighty-nine years, an early resident of Jackson county and a pioneer railroad civil engineer, died Sunday morning at the Indiana Masonic Home, at Franklin, where he had lived since November 1916. His death was due to the infirmities of his extreme age. He had been in declining health for some time and had steadily grown weaker for several weeks before the end came.

"Captain" Blish, as he was familiarly called by his scores of friends here, was born in Woodstock, Vt., December 25 1829, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blish. He was a brother of John Blish, who was prominent with the early history of Seymour. Capt. Blish was educated in the school of Vermont and was graduated from the engineering department of the Windsor, Vt., Academy.

In 1851 he came to the middle west and located in Indiana. He followed his work as a surveyor and civil engineer and soon after his arrival in this state he took a position as engineer on the Cambridge City branch of the old J. M. & I. Railroad.

The deceased is survived by five sons, Charles, John, Maurice and Harrell Leslie, of Indianapolis, Walter Leslie, of Norfolk, Va., one daughter, Miss Viola Leslie, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., one brother, Alex Leslie, of Indianapolis, and one sister, Mrs. Margaret Allen, of Norfolk, Va.

The remains will arrive in this city this evening and will be taken to the Voss Undertaking establishment. The funeral services will be held from Voss' Chapel Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. ## LYCEUM COURSE IS PLANNED FOR CITY

Program of Five Numbers To Be Presented Under Auspices of Several Churches.

THREE LECTURES INCLUDED

Rev. W. E. Carroll, Named President and C. D. Billings Treasurer of Lyceum Committee.

Seymour is to have a lyceum course the coming fall and winter season that will far exceed anything of the kind so far brought to this city. This step was made public this morning following a meeting of the ministers of the different congregations and influential church men of the city which was held at the directors' room of the First National bank.

The course will be composed of five numbers, three of which will be in the form of lectures and two musical entertainments. Among the orators who will be brought here are, Thomas Brooks Fletcher, Dr. J. H. MacDonald and S. Parkes Cadman, the latter being pastor of the Tabernacle church of Brooklyn, N. Y. All are of nationwide reputation as speakers and the announcement that these men are to be brought here will no doubt meet with the approval of all lovers of high class entertainments. The musical numbers will consist of the Criterion Quartette, of New York city and the Louis Stallings company. Both companies have appeared on the Lyceum course in some of the largest cities in the United States and have been highly recommended.

The Lyceum course is to be conducted by several churches of the city and the committee appointed from the different congregations will be known as the Seymour Lyceum committee. Rev. W. E. Carroll, pastor of the Central Christian church has been selected as president of the committee, and C. D. Billings, president of the First National bank is the secretary and treasurer.

The course will cost $800 and it is pointed out that each of the numbers will cost the local committee between $150 and $200 each. The committee has decided to set the price for the season ticket at $1.50 and they will be distributed through the different congregations to their members. It has been the opinion of local church workers that an entertainment of this nature would be greatly appreciated and there is no doubt that the committee will be given the assistance of all interested in bringing the high class lyceum course to this city. The contract for the course was signed this morning it being necessary to close it at this early date in order to secure the high class numbers which have been selected as all are in great demand and have practically completed their bookings for the coming fall and winter season.

Although the contract for the course has been closed no dates for the entertainments have been set. It is expected that the first number will appear here in the early fall.

TRINITY M. E. CHURCH TO HAVE COURT TROOP

Boys of That Congregation Form New Organization With Charles Hemmer as Scoutmaster.

The boys of the Trinity M. E. church have formed a boys' scout troop with a membership of about a dozen, Charles Hemmer, who was instrumental in the organization of the new troop, is the scoutmaster. Preliminary instructions have already been given and a busy program for the summer has been mapped out.

There are already two scout troops in Seymour and this will make the third organization. A fourth troop is to be formed by the boys of the Central Christian church in the near future, it is understood. The Rev. J. H. More, scoutmaster of troop A, is aiding in the organization of the troop in the Trinity M. E. congregation. Theo. Weiler was named troop leader and the organization was called the owl patrol.

Industry Completely Socialized and Private Life is Overturned by The Soviets.

Washington, April 7—A communists' revolution is imminent in German-Austria, according to indirect advices to the state department today from Vienna. A red army is being formed, according to advices. It is being organized in two branches, one a red guard proper, and the other an army of workmen.

The remainder of the population is being disarmed under threat of severe punishment and leaders of the old regime of Hungary continue to be arrested. House furniture is being divided and all restrictions as to marriage and divorce have been removed. Religious instruction in the schools is being replaced by courses in the revolution.

HOPE ENTERTAINED FOR EASTER PEACE

This Possibility Depends Upon the Attitude of the French and British.

INDEMNITY BIG PROBLEM

Bankers From Holland and Other Neutral Countries Confer Regarding Germany's Credits.

By United Press.

Paris, April 7.—When the "big four" resumed its conference here today, a feeling of hope prevailed in American circles that the predictions of Premier Lloyd George and Foreign Minister Pichon of an "Easter peace" will come up. Whether this is possible, it was declared, depends chiefly on the British and French. So if they have concluded they can agree on the various problems by that date, peace is much nearer.

The Americans, however, were the original peace date forecasted naming March 20, March 25, then April 1. On the basis of the American conclusions an agreement appeared possible on each of their dates. A settlement has since been delayed far beyond the American forecast, obviously through no fault of the Americans.

The more optimistic of the delegates believed the question which has been chiefly responsible for delay, reparations, would be cleaned up today. The task for the past two weeks has been centered on the French and British getting together on this problem. Lloyd George's pre-election pledges and French

POLICE MAKE RAID ON POKER GAME

Five Men Enter Pleas of Guilty in City Court and Are Fined $15.

A raid conducted by Chief of Police J. T. Abell and Officer Charles Wallace Saturday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock at the Schaeffer building, 21½ West Second street resulted in six men being arrested and several decks of playing cards and a quantity of poker chips being confiscated. According to the names appearing on the warrants the men arrested were James Henry and John Williams, of Columbus and Jim Smith, John Jones, Henry Waskom and Leonard Sage of this city. It is said that some of the men gave fictitious names when arrested.

Following the raid Saturday afternoon the men were arraigned in city court before Mayor Burkart and entered pleas of not guilty to the charge of gaming. However, five of them changed their pleas this afternoon and pleaded guilty. Leonard sage, who was arrested in the raid charged with visiting a gaming house entered a plea of not guilty. He furnished evidence that he was doing some work in the building when the raid was made. Upon motion of Deputy Prosecutor, John Kamman, the case against him was dismissed. The five men who pleaded guilty were fined $5 and costs, each amounting to $15. The fines were paid and the men were released.

The raid resulted after the police had been "tipped" to the fact that a game was in progress. They entered the building by a rear entrance and were upon the gamblers before they realized that they were officers of the law. The police had been watching the place where the raid was made for several days past as they had been informed that it was a gambling place. It is understood that the rooms are rented by James Henry who it is believed was running the game.

The police are of the opinion that there are several other gambling places operating about the city and some more raids are likely to be made soon.

Soldiers' Letters

Letters Bring Cheer.

Alva Haskett writes as follows to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Haskett, in Redding township.

Camp d'Auvours, France.
Thursday, Mar. 20, 1919

Dear Parents:

Well I received two letters from you, one from Maggie, one from Eva and one from Uncle Andy, so life seems a little more cheerful now. I am well and enjoy a good time but don't run around any. I am working in the sales Comisary handing out stuff to the boys. We put cigars on sale this morning and they went like fire in dry grass. I got paid last week so am not suffering for money but the army pay is a pretty small object to the side of a farmer's money. I do wish I was back to the good old farm to raise a crop this year, and tell some of the slackers and conscientious objectors what I think of them. I use to think a soldier was a hard guy and I can prove it now if any of those religious Amish ever start to talk. I guess the pro Germans had better hunt their hole before we all get back.

We sit here and read or play cards by candle light and they sit by electric light or ride in their automobiles. I have seen the time I could not have any grease for light, have seen boys lay a rag in a box of shoe grease and burn that for light and I paid twenty cents for one candle. Drilled in the rain and had no fire to dry our clothes, slept on rock floor with our clothes on. I was in an English camp and twenty men were allowed eighteen pounds of coal a day and had a stove eighteen inches high and about ten inches wide. We slept on a wood floor with straw mattresses but all had a good time, it is a sight to see eight or ten drunk and each one brag about what he has done. I guess I will close now. Have to go to supper pretty soon. I like my job and am going to do my best with

MUST KEEP "CANINES" UP AT ALL TIMES

Police Receive Complaints That Dogs are Being Turned Loose at Night.

Chief of Police J. T. Abell reports that numerous complaints have been received at the police station in the past few days concerning dogs running at large at night. All dog owners in the city have been complying with the city ordinance recently passed prohibiting dogs from running loose in the city according to the police, but it is the opinion that during the past few nights some of the "canines" have been turned loose to run as they pleased and tied up again the following morning.

It is pointed out that it is at night time when the dogs do their most damage to gardens, lawns and in other ways and the police chief gives notice that the owner of any dog permitted to run at large day or night, will be prosecuted. A call was received at the police station Sunday night to the effect that several dogs were running loose in the north part of the city and an investigation was made but all the dogs had disappeared when the officers arrived in that section.

W. P. Masters and son, W. G. Masters went to Brownstown this morning to transact business in commissioners court.

Nervousness and Headaches Caused by Acid-Stomach

There is a much closer connection between the stomach and brain than most people imagine. It is because of this close connection that indigestion, belching, sour, gassy stomach and other stomach miseries—all of which are sure signs of acid stomach—are so often followed by severe attacks of blinding, splitting headaches.

Nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, mental depression, melancholia and many other disorders which affect the brain can also nearly always be traced to the same source—acid-stomach.

So often you hear people say "I am so nervous I think I'll fly to pieces," or "It seems I never get a good night's sleep any more, my nerves are all on edge." Little do they dream that acid stomach is the direct cause of their troubles because very often there are no pains in the stomach at all. So you see, you can't always judge an acid-stomach condition by the way your stomach, itself, feels.

If you are weak, nervous, unfit—if you are not up to your old time form—if you lack your accustomed enthusiasm, energy and pep—make this test and see if it isn't acid-stomach that is holding you back—robbing you of your health, strength and vigor. Get a big box of EATONIC—the wonderful modern medicine that so quickly puts an acid stomach to rights. It is in the form of pleasant tasting tablets that you eat like a bit of candy. EATONIC rids the stomach of excess acid. Brings instant relief from indigestion, heartburn, sour belching, food repeating, bloating and gas and makes the stomach cool, pure, sweet and comfortable.

Dentists warn us against the bad effects of acid mouth, pointing out that the acid eats through the enamel of the teeth, causing them to decay. You can easily imagine then the amount of damage excess acid will cause to the delicate organization of the stomach!

Thousands of people are using EATONIC and the results obtained are so remarkable as to be almost unbelievable. Yet their letters of gratitude, many of which are received daily, prove absolutely that EATONIC does all and even more than we claim. The medical profession, too, recognizes the great value of this wonderful remedy. A learned Michigan doctor wrote recently: "I have had such wonderful success with EATONIC that I want every one to know how quickly it will neutralize the acidity of the stomach (acid-stomach) and the stomach will soon be sweet and normal again, and the sick man well and happy once more."

So be sure to get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist today. If it fails in any way to give you the kind of satisfaction you want, take it back—he will refund your money. He doesn't want one penny of your money unless EATONIC helps you.

MORE RED BLOOD AND STEADIER NERVES FOR RUN DOWN PEOPLE

The World Demands, Strong, Vigorous, Keen-Minded, Men and Women

It has been said of Americans that they work their habits overtime.

Many become nervous and inefficient by overwork.

By worry, despondency, social affairs, robbing brain and body of needed rest; excessive use of tobacco, indulgence in strong alcoholic drink—excesses of every kind that burn up the vital powers so necessary in these trying times to make both men and women fit to be of help to themselves and others.

It is time to be temperate in all things. The man or woman with impaired nerves caused by impoverished blood lacks vigor, the ambition, the endurance and the keen mind of those who avoid excesses.

Timidity, despondency, fear, trembling hands, want of confidence and even cowardliness, are due in a large measure to abused nerves.

People with plenty of red blood corpuscles and strong, healthy nerves have no desire to shirk work and lean on others for guidance and support.

There is hardly a nerve-shattered man or woman (unless of an organic disease) in America today who cannot become alert and clear in mind; vigorous and energetic in body in a very few weeks and at trifling cost.

To become strong and ambitious, to feel that work is not drudgery; to have steady nerves, abundance of red blood and power of endurance; to be not only a man but as men now go, a superman, you must take seven tablets of Bio-feren every day for seven days—and take them faithfully.

Take two after each meal and one at bedtime and after seven days take one only after meal until the supply is exhausted.

Then if you feel that any claim made in this special notice is untrue—if your nerves are not twice as steady as before; if you do not feel ambitious, more vigorous and keen-minded, the pharmacist who dispensed the tablets to you will gladly hand you back just what you paid for them.

Bio-feren is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous, rundown, weak, anaemic men and women ever offered direct through druggists and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

Mrs. Lou Martin of Brownstown, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Vincent at Jonesville, for several days, spent this morning in this city, enroute to her home.

Miss Kathleen Schooley, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Schooley at Vallonia, returned this morning to Indianapolis, where she is attending school.

A GOOD WAY TO SAVE

"In times like these when economy is so essential, I know of no better way to save than to have the entire family shod with Neolin Soles," writes B. F. Williams, Rochester, N. Y.

In his letter Mr. Williams tells of a pair of Neolin-soled shoes which he has worn constantly for four months. "The soles still look like new," he says.

You, too, will think there is no better way to save, when once you have tried shoes with these long-wearing, comfortable, and waterproof soles. They come in many styles for every member of the family. And good repair shops carry Neolin Soles for re-soles. They are made scientifically by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

road, now a part of the Pennsylvania system. He saw the completion of that road and later became the chief engineer for the projected railroad line from Evansville to Richmond, Ind., which was known as the Lake Erie, Evansville & Southwestern Railroad. He surveyed the right of way and supervised the laying of the track from Evansville to Boonville, but the company did not complete the work and the franchises were taken over by another company which designated the line as the Evansville & Richmond Railroad. Later this became a part of the Chicago, Terre Haute & Southeastern Railroad.

Mr. Blish was married June 8, 1853, to Miss Elizabeth Kester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Kester, of Rockford. To them were born four children, two of whom died in infancy. Two sons, John and Hiram, lived until they reached early manhood. Mrs. Blish died in 1894.

When age prevented Mr. Blish from following his vocation he opened an insurance business in this city and served as a justice of peace for many years. In November 1916 he decided to live at the Masonic state home at Franklin. Throughout his life he was actively identified with the local Masonic lodge and was greatly interested in its advancement. He became a member of Jackson Lodge, Seymour, in 1871, by a transfer of membership. In his earlier career he was financially interested in the old water power mill at Rockford, which was the first flour mill to be established in Jackson county. Mr. Blish kept in close touch with the affairs in this city following his removal to Franklin.

Upon receipt of word from the Masonic Home Sunday that Mr. Blish had died, the local lodge sent a committee to Franklin. The committee consisted of Dr. L. M. Mains, John W. Hays, Charles Appel, L. H. Becker and the Rev. C. W. Whitman. An escort, consisting of J. S. Mills, J. W. Hays, James M. Hamer and Oakley Allen, went to Franklin this

Catarrh is a Real Enemy and Requires Vigorous Treatment

Do Not Neglect It.

When you use medicated sprays, atomizers and douches for your Catarrh, you may succeed in unstopping the choked-up air passages for the time being, but this annoying condition returns, and you have to do the same thing over and over again. Catarrh has never yet been cured by these local applications. Have you ever experienced any real benefit from such treatment?

Throw these makeshift remedies to the winds, and get on the right treatment. Go to your drug store to-day, get a bottle of S. S. S., and commence a treatment that has been praised by sufferers for nearly half a century. S. S. S. gets right at the source of Catarrh, and forces from the blood the germs which cause the disease. You can obtain special medical advice regarding your own case without charge by writing to Medical Director, 22 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

FARMERS' ASSOCIATION TO SUPPORT VICTORY LOAN

Membership Throughout State to Be Notified of Indorsement By Committee.

Support of the Victory loan has become the first public activity of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations, which was recently organized, and which is opening executive offices in Indianapolis.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the federation, headed by John G. Brown, president and C. W. Hickman, secretary, the following fine indorsement of the victory loan was unanimously adopted. The officers of the organization say:

"Realizing that there can be no more important or consequential duty than for every citizen of the Republic to stand square-toed with his Government in the greatest enterprise ever undertaken in behalf of liberty and civilization; conscious of the incompleteness of the task to which we as a people pledged our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor; recognizing that there still remain tremendous financial responsibilities that must be liquidated in order that our Government may retain its self-respect and high place among the nations of the earth; we, the members of the Indiana Federation of Farmers Associations, herewith desire to record our sentiments and convictions, in the following resolutions:

"Whereas there yet remains important and consequential work to be done in connection with America's determination to safe-guard civilization throughout the world.

"Whereas Indiana has made and maintained a proud record of loyal devotion to the cause of civilization and the right of all people to a voice in their own government, and

"Whereas the Federal Government is again asking the people for subscriptions to Victory Bonds, the proceeds of which are deemed necessary for the completion of the great task laid out, therefore be it

"Resolved that we herewith pledge our united and earnest support to the success of this enterprise, that we have no other tasks before it, that we know no other responsibility in a public way until the state has subscribed the last dollar and absorbed the last bond of its allotment; be it further

"Resolved that we welcome the fullest publicity for this declaration that the people of the state may know just where the farmers stand on the proposition of standing by the government, and that the sales organization throughout the state be assured in advance of our fullest cooperation and support.

"Indiana Federation of Farmers' Association. By John G. Brown, Pres.; C. W. Hickman, Secy."

ENROLLMENTS STARTED IN FIVE ACRE CORN CONTEST.

Lafayette, Ind., April 7.—A statewide campaign for the purpose of stimulating interest in corn growing and obtaining a larger enrollment for the five acre corn contest was launched this week and will continue for three weeks. It is hoped that 1,000 men will enter the contest which is the best affair of this sort held by any state in the country, corn men declare.

Everett McClure, of Dearborn county, the 1918 corn king of Indiana and four other well known corn men from throughout the state, C. E. Troyer, LaFontaine; E. B. Moore, Seireville; C. A. Brown, Franklin, and L. L. Adamson, Williams will wage the campaign under auspices of the Indiana Corn Growers' Association.

For several years the five acre corn contest has been conducted in Indiana to demonstrate how to grow more and cheaper corn. Last year, in spite of the frost in June and drouth in July and August the men in the five acre contest had an average yield of 67 bushels against an average for all farms in the state of 33 bushels.

The five men who are working with the extension department of Purdue University, will spend from one to three days in each county working with the county agent to obtain a large enrollment for the contest, so that Indiana farmers may help in the biggest way in making up the estimated 402,000,000 bushels deficit in corn.

Bee Status in Jackson County.

A new law went into effect April 1st, preventing the use of box hives in bee keeping. A box hive is any hive that does not have removable sections; by that we mean any hive which is not arranged so you can remove and inspect the bees and honey at any time that is necessary.

The reason for this law, is the predominance of fowl brood and other diseases throughout the United States. These diseases cannot be controlled in the old box hives. The box hive harboring these diseases has threatened to exterminate the bee industry in Indiana. The bee keepers and others interested, have risen up with the purpose of bettering conditions for the bee industry, and hence the passage of this law.

Last week on the Farm Page there was a splendid article on fowl brood. How to recognize it was fully explained.

The Jackson County Bee Keepers' Association was fully organized in the county agent's office Tuesday, April first. At this meeting they decided to help any bee man in the county in ridding his apiary of fowl brood. The county agent is ready at any time to advise in this matter and to give instructions as to how bees may be transferred to the modern, universal hives that are being used by the up-to-date bee men, and others in complying with the new state law.

Sometime during the month, when the apple blossoms are fully out, we expect to have a bee keepers' tour. Every one will be invited to go with us on this tour and see how fowl brood looks, how controlled, how different men keep bees, and how bees are transferred. On this tour members of this association only will be visited. If you are interested in having bee inspectors come to your home, we advise that you join the Bee Keepers' Association and send the twenty-five cents annual dues to the President of the Association, D. F. Rankin Brownstown, Indiana. At the same time signify your wish that the tour stop at your home.

There is nothing on the farm that makes as good a return for the investment and labor involved as a few stands of good bees. We are not advocating that everyone keep bees, because there are some who would never take the proper care of them. We are advocating however that men who have bees comply with the new state law in regard to the kind of hives used; that he learn how to care for them in a proper and business like manner, rid his apiary of fowl brood and other diseases, such as moths, etc., learn swarm controlling, and how to make the average hive produce one-hundred pounds of honey where it produced twenty-five before.

Anyone interested in the Bee Keepers' tour, get in touch with the county agent's office.

How to Provide Summer Hog Feed.

Prospects are that hog feeds will be somewhat scarce and high in price until the new grain crops are available, and the Animal Husbandry Division of Purdue University believes that more extensive use of forage crops, buying the most economical hog feeds, an early grain crop and soybeans in corn for hogging off will help the farmers of Jackson county to meet this situation.

If red clover or alfalfa pasture is available for spring and summer use there will be little need to provide other forage crops. If these are not available oats and Dwarf Essex rape sown as early as weather and soil conditions will permit will supply an excellent forage. Prepare the ground as for oats and seed six to eight pecks of oats and four to five pounds of Dwarf Essex rape per acre. This crop is ready to pasture when six or eight inches high. An acre will supply forage for 10 to 15 mature hogs. Extension Bulletin No. 66 gives considerable information about the culture and use of forage crops for hogs.

By studying the comparative feeding value and market prices of the farm-grown grains, their by-products and commercial mixed hog feeds the farmer will be able to buy those which will return the largest amount of pork per dollar invested in feed. Your county agent or the Purdue Extension Department will be glad to give you full information in regard to feed values for hogs.

Barley is undoubtedly the best crop to sow to supply early grain for hogs in the northern part of the state. Success, Beardless and Odebrucker are good varieties. Seed six to eight pecks of seed as for oats. In the central and southern parts of the state it may be advisable to plant a small acreage of ninety-day corn.

Soybeans planted in field corn make an excellent combination for fattening hogs during the fall months. Extension Leaflet No. 102 gives full information about this practice. Any of the publications mentioned can be obtained from the county agent or direct from the Purdue Extension Department at LaFayette.

$4,000 Lost on 500 Ewes.

"Bought last fall at 17 cents and sold to-day at ten cents weighing four pounds less than when they left the market, is the story of 500 western yearling ewes handled by an inexperienced corn-belt farmer. The investment represented a money loss of $4,000 depreciation in value, beside feed bills, labor involved and peace of mind, upon which no standard value can be placed. The above transaction is a typical one of its kind, of which you hear little when top lambs are selling at 21c." said Claude Harper, sheep husbandryman on the Purdue University Extension staff.

Yet the same thing happens year after year. Another lot of ewes, gummers out of the West last fall, went around the triangle—market to farm to market—and brought 9½c the same day with a tail end out at six cents. The stuff was thin and emaciated. The farmer in addition to getting "burned" has done the industry an incalculable injury. The meat from such sheep is what implanted in the minds of millions of Americans, the idea that all lamb and mutton carry an unsavory, muttony taste. While the product of Colorado feed yards, grazed on the sweet grasses 10,000 feet above sea level and fattened in the corrals about Ft. Collins was reaching for the $21.00 mark and carrying lamb favor to corresponding height, these poor ones were dragging along anywhere from $6.00 to $10.00 per hundred and sully the reputation of the cleanest and most healthful of meats.

Farmers contemplating sheep as an adjunct to their farms can get two lessons from this day's market. Don't go into sheep at all unless you know something about them or have a good way of finding out. Don't buy old ewes expecting to get a crop of lambs out of them and returning them to market the next season, unless you are prepared to give them added attention and soft feeds. It is this element of chance, this speculative impulse, this In Again, Out Again, Gone Again Finnegan feature of the sheep industry that helps keep the market so unstable. It is the inferior quality and condition of the stuff so handled that restricts the narrow limits of the lamb-eating public.

WYCKOFF TO BE ONE OF EGG SHOW JUDGES

Lafayette, Ind., April 7.—Stanley Wyckoff, Indianapolis poultryman and former Marion County food administrator, will be one of the judges at the annual state egg show to be held at Purdue University April 22, 23 and 24, it was announced today. The other judges will be F. L. Lloyd, of the Lloyd poultry firm at Greensburg. Both the judges are among the best known poultrymen in the state. The catalogue for the show is off the press and is ready for distribution to exhibitors in all classes.

Make Breeding Animals Take Enough Exercise.

Lafayette, Ind., April 7.—Hundreds of colts, calves, pigs, and lambs are lost in Indiana each spring because of failure of the owners to see that the mothers get plenty of exercise while carrying their young says Dr. L. C. Kigin, veterinarian on the Purdue University extension staff. Many of the breeding animals die during the act of parturition for want of exercise during the period of gestation. Unless animals voluntarily take plenty of exercise before the act of parturition, force them to exercise and do not let them lie down too much. Failure to take enough exercise means poor digestion and assimilation of food and normal circulation cannot be maintained without exercise, sunshine and fresh air.

Plenty of exercise means that the offspring will be much more vigorous, healthy, and have greater resistance to disease, said Dr. Kigin.

LAKE COUNTY HOLSTEIN MEN FORM ASSOCIATION

Twenty-five farmers, breeders of pure-bred Holstein cattle recently formed the Lake County Holstein Breeders' Association, with a membership fee of $10. The association will co-operate with similar organizations in putting on an advertising campaign to show the food value of milk and improve the demand for milk and dairy products. The officers are: J. W. Sherburne, Leroy, president; Sam B. Woods, vice-president; Harry Newton, secretary; Andrew Krieter, treasurer. All the officers except Sherburne live near Crown Point.

MAYBE THEY'RE NOT GOLDEN, BUT THESE RULES ARE GOOD

Here are the golden rules of farming as laid down by a Pulaski county farmer, Harry White, who has met with an unusual degree of success:

"First, the farm must be well drained; second, the farm must be well fenced; third, the farm must be well tilled."

These things must be done with the mind and hands and not too much with the auto, he also observed.

New Garden Bulletin.

"Indiana Gardens in 1919" is the title of a bulletin recently off the press of the Purdue University Extension department. It is now ready for distribution in Indiana. The bulletin tells how the various cities in the state were organized for garden work and how this work could be done this year.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

The Battle in the Night.

Gathering on the bank were the camp groups to watch the last stand of the river against the rock bombardment. Molly Silent had crept down from the Crossing, full of fears. Out there, somewhere on the trestles, on one of those rock cars, was her Jim. She sat on the bank by Innes and Mrs. Marshall.

Mrs. Hardin, floated by in her crisp muslins. A few feet behind stalked Godfrey, his eyes on the pretty figure by his side. Innes turned from his look, abashed as though she had been peering through a locked door.

Gayly, with a fluttering of ruffles, Gerty established herself on the bank, a trifle out of hearing distance. A hard little smile played on the lips accented with Parisian rouge. The childish expression was gone; her look accused life of having trifled with her. But they would see—

"Don't look so unhappy, dearest," whispered the man at her side. "I'm going to make you happy, dear!"

She flushed a brilliant, finished smile at him. Yes, she was proud of him. He satisfied her sense of romance, or would, later, when she was away from here, a dull pain pricking at her deliberate planning. Godfrey found her young, young and distracting. His life had been hungry, too; the wife, up there in Canada somewhere, had never understood him. Godfrey was ambitious, ambitious as she was. She would be his wife; she would see the cities of the world with him, the welcomed wife of Godfrey; she would share the plaudits his wonderful voice won.

His eyes were on her now, she knew, questioning, not quite sure of her. She had worried him yesterday because she would not pledge herself to marry him if he sued for his divorce. She had told him to ask her that after the courts had set him free. She could not have him sure of her.

An exclamation from him recalled her. She found that he was no longer staring at her; his eyes were fixed on the trembling structure over which a "battleship," laden with rock, was creeping.

"I want to stay with you, you know that dearest. But it doesn't feel right to see them all working like niggers and me loafing here. You don't mind?"

Oh, no, Gerty did not mind! She was tired, anyway! She was going back to her tent!

He thrust a yellow paper into her hands. "I sent that off today. Perhaps you will be glad?"

She flung another of her inscrutable smiles at him, and went up the bank, the paper unread in her hands.

The long afternoon wore away. They were now dynamiting the largest rocks on the cars before unloading them. The heavy loads could not be emptied quickly enough. Not dribbled, the rock, but dumped simultaneously, else the gravel and rock might be washed down stream faster than they could be put together. Many cars must be unloaded at once; the din on Silent's train was terrific. His crew looked like devils, drenched from the spray which rose from the river each time the rock-pour began; blackened by the smoke from the belching engine. The river was ugly in its wrath. It was humping itself for its final stand against the absurdity of human intention; its yellow tail swished through the bents of the trestle.

The order came for more speed. Rickard moved from bank to raft; knee deep in water, screaming orders through the din; directing the gangs; speeding the rock trains. Hardin oscillated between the levee and dams, taking orders, giving orders. His energy was superb. It had grown dark, but no one yet had thought of the lights, the great Wells' burners stretched across the channel. Suddenly, the lights flared out brightly.

Not one of those who labored or watched would ever forget that night. The spirit of recklessness entered even into the stolid native. The men of the Reclamation forgot this was not their enterprise; the Hardin faction jumped to Rickard's orders. The watchers on the bank sat tense, thrilled out of recognition of aching muscles, or the midnight creeping chill. No one would go home.

To Innes, the struggle was vested in two men, Rickard running down yonder with that light foot of his, and Hardin with the fighting mouth tense. And somewhere, she remembered, working with the rest, was Estrada. Those three were fighting for the justification of a vision—an idea was at stake, a hope for the future.

Rickard passed and repassed her. And had not seen her! Not during those hours would he think of her, not until the idea failed, or was triumphant, would he turn to look for her.

Visibly, the drama moved toward its climax. Before many hours passed the river would be captured or the idea forever mocked. Each time a belching engine pulled across that hazardous track it flung a credit to the man-side. Each time the waters, slowly rising, hurled their weight against the creaking trestles where the rock was thin, a point was gained by the militant river. Its roar sounded like the last cry of a wounded animal in Innes' ear; the Dragon was a reality that night as it spent its rage against the shackles of puny men.

Molly Silent had seen her husband's train pull in. She watched for it to go out again. The whistle blew twice. Something was wrong. She left her place in time to see Silent, his face shining ghastly pale under the soot, pull himself up from the "battleship" where he had been leaning. Estrada, sent by Rickard to find out why the train did not pull out, saw him the same instant, as did Molly. Silent swayed, waving them back unseeing, like a man who is drunk.

"God, man, you can't go like that!" cried Estrada.

"Who's going?" demanded Silent, his tongue thick with thirst and exhaustion. The whistle blew again.

"I will!" The train moved out on the trestle, as the whistle blew angrily twice. Only Molly and Silent saw Estrada go. Silent staggered unseeing up the bank toward the camp, Molly following.

The river was humping out yonder; the rolling mass came roaring, flank-on, against the dam.

"Quick, for God's sake, quick!" yelled Rickard. His signals sounded short and sharp. "Dump it on, throw the cars in!" Marshall was dancing, his mouth full of oaths, on the bank edge. Breathlessly all watched the rushing water fling itself over the dam. For several flushed seconds the structure could not be seen. When the foam fell a cheer went up. The dam was standing. Silent, it was supposed, was bringing in his train.

Above the distant jagged line of mountains rose a red ball. A new day began. And again the Dragon rose; a mountain of water came rolling damward.

Three trains ran steaming on the rails.

"Don't stop now to blast the big ones. Pour 'em on!" ordered Rickard.

There was a long wait before any rock fell. Marshall and Rickard waited for the pour. The whistles blew again. Then they saw what was wrong. The morning light showed a rock weighing several tons which was resisting the efforts of the pressing crew. Out of the gloom sprang other figures with crowbars. The rock tottered, fell. The river tossed it as though it were a tennis ball, sent it hurtling down the lower face of the dam.

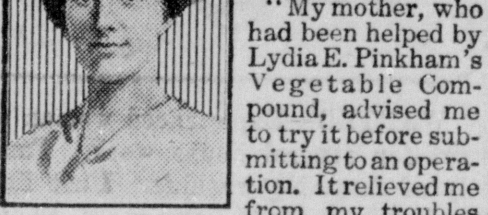

Things began to go wild. The men were growing reckless. They were sagging toward exhaustion; mistakes were made. Another rock, as heavy as the last, was worked toward the edge. Men were thick about it with crowbars. They hurried. One concerted effort, drawing back as the rock toppled over the edge. One man was too slow, or too tired. He slipped. The watchers on the bank saw a flash of waving arms, heard a cry; they had a glimpse of a blackened face as the foam caught it. The waters closed over him.

There was a hush of horror; a halt. "God himself couldn't save that poor devil," cried Marshall. "Have the work go on!"

Pour rocks on that wretch down there? Pin him down? Never had it seemed more like war! "A man down? Ride over him! to victory!" Soberly Rickard signaled for the work to go on.

The rock-pour stuttered as if in horror. The women turned sick with fear. No one knew who it was. Some poor Mexican, probably.

"Who was it?" demanded Rickard, running down to the track.

"The young Mexican, Estrada. 'E tried to 'elp. 'E wasn't fit."

"Who was it?" Marshall had run down to see why the work paused.

Rickard turned shocked eyes on his chief. "Estrada!" The beautiful mournful eyes of Eduardo were on him, not Marshall's, horrified. Now he knew why Estrada had said, "I can't see it finished."

"Rickard!" The engineer did not recognize the quenched voice. "The work has got to go on."

It came to Rickard as he gave the orders that Eduardo was closer to Marshall than to him. "As near a son as he'll ever have." He turned a minute later to see his chief standing bareheaded. His own cap came off.

"We're burying the lad," said Marshall.

The minute of funeral had to be pushed aside. The river would not wait. Train after train was rushed on to the trestles; wave after wave hit them. But perceptibly the dam was steady. The rapid fire of rock was telling.

Another ridge of yellow waters rose. The roll of water came slowly, dwindling as it came; it broke against the trestle weakly. For the first time the trestle never shuddered. Workers and watchers breathed as a unit the first deep breath that night. There was a change. Every eye was on the river where it touched the rim of the dam. Suddenly a chorused cry rose. The river had stopped rising. The whistles screamed themselves hoarse.

And then a girl, sitting on the bank, saw two men grab each other by the hand. She was too far away to hear their voices, but the sun, rising red through the banks of smoke, fell on the blackened faces of her brother and Rickard. She did not care who saw her crying.
